PEOPLE OF THE BOOK

AND PROUD OF IT* By Rabbi Dean Kertesz

It's summer, and a Jew's fancy turns toward... books. Because I teach, summer still holds a little magic for me. Much as it did when I was in school I get some time off from the day-to-day grind of life for a few weeks. Even if you don't have the luxury of summer vacation there is something wonderful about the time between Memorial Day and Labor Day. All of us feel a little more relaxed. Many of us take some time off and go on vacation. Maybe it is only an hour away, but the change of scenery and the slower pace give our minds a chance to wander and to grow.

Summer is also book season - or e-reader season - depending on your preference. It is the time of year when publishers push thick works of fiction; page turners designed for distraction rather than mental growth. I'm not knocking a good beach-read thriller but if you have a little extra time on your hands to read, why not read something that will help you grow rather than provide distraction? Add to this the constant list of Jewish titles published every year and you have a ready-made, customized, personal adult education program at your fingertips. The great thing about reading Jewish books is that it doesn't matter whether you're religious or not, you can learn something about Jewish history, thought, tradition, culture and/or cooking or read Jewish themed fiction; whatever suits your tastes.

Here are just a few titles that caught my eye or that I have read and found worthwhile in the past year:

If you are interested in Israel, try Like Dreamers by Yossi Klein Halevi. Klein Halevi is an American-Israeli journalist and this book is the history of Israel since the 1967 Six Day War told through the lives of a number of soldiers in the paratrooper brigade who captured the Old City of Jerusalem. Some became leaders of the settler movement, others founded Peace Now, one was imprisoned for spying for Syria against Israel. It's a well written and fascinating account of the last 46 years of Israel. My Promised Land by Ari Shavit isn't exactly new; it has been in print for about two-and-a-half years, but it was recently released in paperback and is an important book. Shavit is a journalist for the Israeli newspaper Ha'aretz and in his book he explores the basic moral and political dilemmas that have been central to the State of Israel beginning well before its founding. Each chapter covers a decade by exploring a central event in Israel's history. The book is at times inspiring, at other times depressing but worth reading to gain an insight into the challenges with which Israel struggles and to cultivate an informed and nuanced understanding of the state.

If you are interested in Jewish thought try How Judaism Became a Religion: An Introduction to Modern Jewish Thought, by Laura Batnitzky. In this slim and wide ranging book she examines how Judaism evolved from being an all-encompassing public and private way of life to a modern religion in the Western sense, voluntary, private, and separate from the sphere of civil life. It's a profound book and gave me a great insight into the development of modern Judaism.

If you like to cook then get any of the cookbooks by Yotam Ottolenghi and Sami Tamimi, which include Jerusalem, Ottolenghi, Plenty, or Plenty More. The food is delicious and you will learn a lot about Jerusalem, Mizrahi Jews, and the food of the eastern Mediterranean.

Please don't forget Among the Enemy: Hiding in Plain Sight in Nazi Germany, by our own Sam Genirberg. His memoir of his life before, during and after the Second World War is amazing. You will learn a lot about Sam and about the Shoah. It is an important book and worthy of your time.

I must confess I don't read a lot of fiction, except in the summer, so I don't have any new Jewish fiction to recommend, but I know there is a lot because my mother is in a Jewish book club and they have no end of fiction to read. My recommendation is not a new book, but nonetheless one well worth reading. As A Driven Leaf, by Milton Steinberg (ז"ל) is a fictional account of the life of Rabbi Elisha Ben Abuyah, also known in the Talmud as "Ha Acher," (the Other). He is one of Judaism's most famous heretics and this book is an exploration of Jewish life in the first century of the new millennia when Judea was under Roman occupation. It is also a meditation on American Jewish life. It is one of those books that everyone should read, because it provides a window into one of the most critical, and least understood, periods in Jewish history.

If none of these recommendations suit your taste, remember we have a great library and the synagogue with plenty of books to explore. Have a great summer and happy reading!

Sponsor an Oneg Shabbat

TBH depends on our great volunteers. We especially need hosts/hostesses for our Friday night onegs. If you haven't hosted an oneg recently or have a simcha coming up, don't hesitate to let Bobbi Nadler (bjnadler@aol.com) or Judy Windrix (windrix@pacbell.net) know. There's a sign-up sheet in the lobby or you can notify them by phone or e-mail to let them know your preferred date. A week beforehand you will get an e-mail confirming the date and simple instructions if you've never hosted before. And remember, it's the dedication of our great volunteers that make TBH such a special community.

Remember the Hungry Keep the Red Barrels Filled

For the last five years Temple Beth Hillel has been a reliable provider of food to those in our community who do not have enough to eat. Whenever you come to the synagogue please continue to bring a nonperishable food item. Cereal and peanut butter are in particular demand. Let's keep the red barrels filled and share our plenty with our neighbors. If you prefer you can send a check to the TBH office and we will make sure it gets to the Food Pantry.

In addition, please bring hotel toiletries. There is a drop box for these outside Arlene's office. Rubicon Programs gives these supplies to homeless participants. They are also always in need of paper grocery bags or other recyclable bags to pack up food bank orders for their participants.

If you have any plastic bags (the type you get at grocery stores with handles), please save and bring to them to temple on your next visit. These bags are used to carry meals for delivery by Sharon Mittleman and "Meals on Wheels."

A BISSEL ENCOURAGEMENT AND A BISSEL KUGEL

After Pesach and other holidays, the summer season is starting. The words in this column will be repeated at our General Membership Meeting on June 7, but I can't tell you how grateful I am as I complete my first year as president of Temple Beth Hillel. It's been a great honor. Thank you to all our congregants for your loving support and help and tireless volunteer work. The TBH board has worked very hard this year in bringing us great events. Our committees, such as the Ritual Committee and Caring Committee, have made enormous contributions to TBH. Thank you to the Religious School teachers, parents and students for their participation. Thank you, Arlene, for making everything work. I want to send a special thank you to our clergy, Rabbi Dean and Cantor Fran, for their inspiring leadership.

Looking to the year ahead, I hope all of you will be coming to services, Adult Ed, the High Holy Days and the usual events in the Jewish and TBH calendars. We will have some interesting Bagel Brunches and other events.

Our General Membership Meeting will be on June 7 starting at 10 AM with an opportunity to schmooze and enjoy some food. We will start our meeting at 10:30 followed by our annual barbecue. See you then!

Here is a Shavuot recipe that sounds good for a TBH potluck all year round:

THROW TOGETHER NOODLE KUGEL

BY SISTERHOOD TEMPLE EMANU-EL, DALLAS, TX

Ingredients:

3 eggs
2 cups milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 stick margarine
12 ounces cottage cheese
1/2 cup sugar (less to taste)
8 ounces noodles, uncooked

Directions:

1. Melt margarine.
2. Stir in all ingredients.
3. Pour into greased, 9-inch Pyrex dish.
4. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes.
5. Sprinkle topping over kugel and continue cooking for about another 30 minutes until crisp on top and knife inserted in center comes out clean.

Topping:

1 cup crushed corn flakes
1 cup brown sugar
Add cinnamon to taste

Please enjoy!

Lshalom,

Jane C. Durango, President

NOTES FROM THE BOARD MEETING OF APRIL 22, 2015.

Before the meeting opened, Rabbi Dean affixed a mezuzah on the doorframe of the newly decorated adult education room. Thanks were extended to Ron Codron who donated the rug and its installation, Josh Genser, who spearheaded the project and Louise Snitz, who provided the window treatments.

The board also heard a treasurer's report. There was general agreement that we consider holding one or more fund raisers next year.

In news from the Religious School, the board reluctantly accepted the resignation of Sheri Tattenham, who is retiring. A search has begun for a new teacher.

The publicity committee was commended for all the excellent publicity generated by the Food4Thought spring food drive. The board also heard from GRIP about its financial problems.

Volunteer to Help The Contra Costa Food Bank Saturday, Aug. 1 from 11:30 to 1:30

Members and friends of Temple Beth Hillel are invited to join us for a food sorting event at the Food Bank of Contra Costa and Solano on Saturday, Aug. 1, from 11:30 AM to 1:30 PM. The Food Bank is located at 4010 Nelson Ave. in Concord, off Highway 4 at the Solano Way exit. We can carpool from the Temple at 11 and be back at 2. This mitzvah opportunity allows us to help feed hungry children, seniors, the ill and working poor families. Please come and join us for this fun and rewarding Mitzvah. If you are interested or have questions, feel free to contact Neil Zarchin at 925.639.3736 or neil.zarchin@gmail.com.

Check Out Our TBH Gift Shop

You will find Judaica of all kinds: jewelry, cards, candlesticks, mezuzot, kiddush cups and more. Contact Judy Windrix at 925-939-4086 or Windrix@pacbell.net when you are looking for something special for a gift or a treat for yourself.

A THANK YOU MESSAGE TO OUR COMMUNITY

Our Dear TBH Community,

We want to thank everyone who came out to the Service where Michael became Bar Mitzvah and who were there in spirit. It means a lot to our family that we have the support of family, friends and our community. We are grateful for those who helped with the food and logistics before & afterwards. That includes Jane Durango, Jane Kemp, Jane Kaasa, Sheri Tattenham, Neoma Kewood, Arlene Lisby and Michael Nye. For help with ritual honors we appreciate the participation Jane Durango, Michael Nye, David Brown, Elisabeth Miller, Malka Helfman, Sheri Tattenham, and Cantor Fran. We know that Michael would not have been anywhere near prepared without the tireless efforts of Malka Helfman, Cantor Fran & Rabbi Dean. For all this and much more we are truly thankful. Please forgive us for any omissions. Everyone's efforts big and small helped to make it a memorable day that we will cherish.

תודה רבה
Thank You

Love,

The Foxes – Larry, Heather, Michael, Jenny & Jacob

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

The following is an excerpt from an article that appeared in the April 9 issue of the J entitled "Richmond synagogue feeds hungry school kids on break" by Rachel Raskin-Zrihen

Dozens of needy families in western Contra Costa County didn't go hungry during spring break this week because of an interfaith effort sparked in part by Temple Beth Hillel in Richmond.

For years, Beth Hillel, through its Food For Thought program, has been involved in helping feed local schoolchildren from low-income families during winter breaks. Usually those kids rely on the free and low-cost lunches they get at school, but when school is out, they're out of luck.

That's where Beth Hillel and other benevolent organizations have stepped in — and how the idea came about for a food giveaway during spring break, as well. "... Beth Hillel member Michael Nye said "There are 15 elementary schools in West Contra Costa County with 100 percent participation in low- or no-cost meals programs, plus another 15 schools with 60 to 90 percent participation. It's quite shocking. And if there's no school [in session], there's no food for those kids."

Nye said 90 families at four schools received food baskets in time for spring break, which began April 6 — a day after Easter and in the middle of the weeklong celebration of Passover. Those baskets were to help feed approximately 600 to 700 people, Nye said. "And that's just scratching the surface," he added.

The expansion into spring break resulted from a series of happy coincidences, said Cindy Jaconette, co-founder of the year-old interfaith organization Let's Feed the Kids. One day she heard a radio report about the Beth Hillel's winter break food program.

"I was driving at the time and didn't [catch the name of the synagogue], so I started looking for them, asking everyone if they knew which synagogue it was, because we had funding but didn't know how to organize such an effort," Jaconette said. Soon afterward, Jaconette was attending a food security task force meeting run by the Interfaith Council of Contra Costa County when she heard a man seated nearby explaining how that very winter break food program worked. "I turned around and said, 'I've been looking for you,'" she said. "It was a beautiful moment in time."

The spring break program worked though the cooperative efforts of several entities besides Beth Hillel, Jaconette said. Temple Isaiah of Lafayette, Congregation B'nai Tikvah of Walnut Creek and three local churches all contributed in some way, either with volunteers or donations or both. In addition, White Pony Express, a food donation and distribution service with roots in the Sufism community, donated enough bread, plus other food, for 90 families.

Much of the food was bought through the Food Bank of Contra Costa and Solano, with additional items obtained at reduced rates from various markets, Jaconette said. On March 29, volunteers spent three hours at the Beth Hillel assembling some 200 boxes that had been donated. Two days later, another three hours went into packing approximately 1,500 pounds of food into the boxes, and a day after that, the boxes of food were delivered to West Contra Costa Unified School District schools, where low-income families were able to pick them up. Organizers said the boxes included enough food for a week's worth of meals, with items such as frozen chicken meat, pastas, peanut butter, cans of tuna, and a lot of fresh fruits and vegetables. They also said they'd like to expand the program to serve more schools and additional districts, and to include other school vacation periods.
